

JULIA TELLE

ABOUT ME

I'm a dedicated English educator and graduate student passionate about making literature accessible to readers of all backgrounds through the integration of technology. Currently pursuing a Master's in Learning Technologies and Design at the University of Missouri-Columbia, I aim to create technology-based learning experiences that engage and empower struggling readers. My years of experience in secondary English education and strong foundational knowledge in instructional design gives me unique insight into the needs and considerations of this student population.
